

i-GESS Inter-Generational Activity Project

SKH Chan Young Secondary School is one of the 18 schools that participated in the i-GESS project jointly organized by the Faculty of Social Science of HKBU and the Research Centre for Gerontology and Family Studies of PolyU.

The project allows secondary school teachers to set a theme, students to design and receive training with university students and senior adults, conduct 6 hours of intergenerational activities, followed by survey, sharing, and evaluation. It aims to develop students with positive attitudes, knowledge, and behavioral changes to older people, improve students' communication skills across generations. It also inspires students' career preferences for serving older adults and enhancement of intergenerational understanding, mutual respect, and harmony.
